

Training for the development of a value chain in the BIOEAST HUB CZ Regional HUB Charles Spa, RuralBioUp

As part of strengthening the building of value chains defined in HUB Charles Spa, a seminar of expert lectures on integrated plant protection was held in ART, Troubsko on 21st October 2024. The range of lectures attracted a large number of participants, who had the opportunity to learn about the latest knowledge on the integrated protection of fodder crops, maize, rapeseed, potatoes, legumes, cumin, linseed and hemp.

The seminar not only brought a lot of valuable information responding to legislative changes in plant protection, but also presented some of the tools that can help support farmers to create value chains in the region.

The seminar provided a valuable space for discussion on this key issue and brought a lot of valuable information in the field of integrated plant protection. At the same time, it was also a place for establishing other potential partner contacts outside the Charles Spa region.

Due to the very creative atmosphere, an interview was conducted among those present for the need to collect data for the Impact assessment.

Small snacks were supported by the RuralBioUp project.
